NEP fails to address concerns of students

While a lot has been written about the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 from the academic, political, and ideological lens, the perspective of students has been missing. This is in keeping with the discourse on education, which marginalises the most important stakeholder. NEP itself neglects the concerns and aspirations of the young, especially first-generation learners. One, the question of access. Young people from poor and marginalised backgrounds who want to study in colleges are completely dependent on external financial support. It is thus surprising that when the policy identifies the "major problems faced by the higher education system in India" (Section 9.2), it makes no mention of the crippling lack of funds for the higher education sector.

It is this lack of public investment which explains why almost 80% of colleges are private, and why even public universities are being privatised by transitioning to "self-financing" courses. It is because of lack of public investment that many public universities shockingly don't hold classes as there aren't enough teachers for all the enrolled students. And it is lack of public investment that denies six out of seven students enrolled in central universities affordable accommodation. The policy barely mentions hostels, but for large numbers of first-generation learners who secure admission in state and central universities away from home, the lack of affordable accommodation is a significant barrier to completing education. For instance, average tuition fees in Allahabad University is about ~1,000 annually, but room and board costs of ~45,000 to ~ one lakh annually are prohibitive for most poor students.

In J&K, time for dialogue

In a candid interview to this newspaper earlier this week, Jammu and Kashmir (J&K)'s former chief ministers, and National Conference (NC) leaders, Farooq and Omar Abdullah, spoke of the bitterness they personally felt after Parliament pushed through constitutional changes in J&K last year. The conversation was laced with anger at what they saw as a violation of a sovereign commitment by India by effectively revoking Article 370; hurt at how they were detained and put in the same basket as separatists even as they are viewed as India's representatives in Srinagar; and determination to challenge the changes politically and legally.

To be sure, the NC's record is not all clean. Sheikh Abdullah's turn towards radicalism in the early 1950s jeopardised the project of integrating Kashmir with the rest of India. Despite repeated opportunities in power, the party was unable to win over the hearts and minds of people of J&K — which provided space for separatists. By almost portraying themselves as the only force standing between India and secession, the NC also extracted a wide range of political concessions from Delhi, with doubtful outcomes. But it is also true that the NC's firm position in favour of India, right from 1948 onwards, has been an important element in adding legitimacy to India's political and diplomatic case against Pakistan. The NC has lost hundreds of workers to terrorism because it defended the Indian flag. The Abdullah father-son duo have always participated in peaceful and democratic politics. And that is why when they speak, New Delhi must listen and begin a wider process of engaging with Kashmir's pro-India forces. The Centre will not bring back Article 370 — but by suggesting that they will fight this out in the Supreme Court, the Abdullaha are leaving room for a political dialogue that does not hinge on a resolution of this issue. By pointing to the apprehensions caused by the domicile law and the delimitation process, and the need for statehood, the NC is actually giving a roadmap to the central government on what needs to be revised.

Setback For Netflix - Supreme Court Dismisses Netflix Petition Against Sahara

Ahmedabad, The Supreme Court today dismissed the SLP filed by Netflix, challenging the order dated 28.08.2020 passed by a Civil Court in Araria, Bihar, restraining the NETFLIX and its producers, directors, employees, officers and associates etc. from releasing, transmitting, distributing, exhibiting, performing or communicating to the public, the promo and the documentary series Bad Boy Billionaires' by any means or technology. The Netflix has also filed a transfer petition, however, no immediate relief in the transfer petition could be granted. The Supreme Court only issued notice in the TP. A Sahara Group Entity and a Sector Manager of Sahara in Bihar had filed a injunction suit for restraining Netflix from releasing the said series against their Chairman and business entities, which was not only defamatory but also offending to the privacy and trademarks of their company. Saharas have also filed a criminal complaint against Netflix and its directors Abhishek Nag, Reginald Shawn Thompson, Neha Sinha and the producers Nick Read, Ms. Reva Sharma and Iqbal Kidwai, for committing various criminal offences under Information Technology Act 2000, Indian Penal Code and the Trademarks Act. The Magistrate took cognizance of the offenses on their complaint and recorded evidence of witnesses. It is likely that the Magistrate may issue summons to the officials of Netflix on the said complaint.
